Asylum and Immigration Act 1996

Prevention of Illegal Working

Under the terms of the Asylum and Immigration Act 1996 all employers in the UK are required to make basic document checks on every person they intend to employ. By checking and copying certain original documents belonging to the potential employee the Society can ensure a statutory defence against conviction for employing an illegal worker.

Where a prospective employee does not have the right to work in the UK without Home Office permission, any offer of employment will be subject to an application for a work permit being made to and approved by the Home Office and/or Work Permits (UK).

These rules apply to any new employee, whether on salary, wages, fees or any other form of payment and irrespective of the length or duration of the work.

In order to comply with the Act, all candidates selected for interview are asked to bring to the interview original documents as follows:

- One of the original documents included in List 1.

If however candidates are unable to provide one of the original documents included in List 1, they are asked to provide two of the original documents in the combinations given in List 2
